Was the PR8 beta another sign of the newsletter not being firm enough to be used? I'm not sure. I don't believe that one post equals two. But the newsletter has had a number of glitches and needed to be re-formatted. I don't have a clue why that is - since the update there have not been any bugs. So I'm out of ideas. I'm going to use this PR as an opportunity to write regarding a poster show that I will be attending. We'll see how that goes. <https://www.instamotion.ru>

Instagram suggests that I follow 14 people, but I don't have more than 5 in common with these people. Some people will be sponsored, and I'm not interested in that. I'll accept sponsored posts, but will clearly indicate that this is a sponsored post. This could happen in other ways, too. Of course, I have a full-frame digital SLR and a mirrorless, which is a far cry from a tablet. And it's growing into a platform for film shooters, too. I'll continue to blog about that with a solid focus on my digital output. From my perspective, this could be quite valuable. At the moment, it seems that I face countless hurdles when I want to share my photographs. Whether it's Facebook or Instagram, no one comes to my site, and so I know less about my photography. I want to be online, and give my kids and grandkids a Facebook name. I want to be able to look at my portfolio without going through the hassle of going through 200 images. I want to take a picture and share it with a short message, preferably without having to first go through Instagram or another far-away site.

The major features of the release of Adobe Photoshop CC 2015 update are as follows:

- New Pixel and Object Layers
 - Previous versions automatically combined non-object pixel layers with object layers. This will be even greater now that the Layers Panel groups objects that have been combined into a single layer.
 - This gives you additional control over changes to the appearance of your object layers, enabling you to preview only the raster layers you are working on in a preview window. Without raster-layers in your preview.psd, Preview will repaint with a new appearance of the raster layers.
 - Use the Layers panel to convert the raster layer to a new independent object layer, while keeping the raster layer's transparency intact.
